Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 03 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Milder but mostly cloudy today, then colder with showers tomorrow.

Today:
Murky with drizzly rain and hill fog in most areas at first. Becoming drier through the morning, but remaining largely cloudy. Brief glimmers of brightness in the afternoon. Feeling milder. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:
Mostly dry at first this evening but becoming increasingly breezy overnight with showers developing. Feeling cold but staying largely frost free. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Saturday:
A showery day with the driest and sunniest weather during the morning, but more frequent showers, perhaps with hail, arriving for the afternoon. Feeling cold in the blustery northwesterly winds. Maximum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Drier and sunnier on Sunday and still rather windy. Rain and hill snow on Monday, but brighter later. Possibly very windy by Tuesday with further rain. Feeling cold.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.